1.No, not to us, O Lord, but to your name
 2.Our God, enthroned on heav - en's cher - u - bim,
 3.Though they have mouths, they can - not make a sound.
 4.Though they have hands, they can - not touch or feel,
 5.O Is - ra - el, trust on - ly in the Lord!

 will bring to pass what - ev - er pleas - es him.
 Their eyes are blind: they can - not look a - round
 and at dead feet do their a - dor - ers - kneel.
 Praise him, your help and shield, with one ac - cord;

we hon - our and a - dore you.
 The i - dols of the na - tions,
 at an - y sac - ri - fic - es,
 Though pre - cious stones en - crust them,
 his pow - er will pro - tect you.

B $\flat$  C F C

Your stead - fast love and faith - ful - ness we laud.
 though skil - ful works of sil - ver and of gold,
 They may have ears, but they can nev - er hear;
 yet from their mouths no words can ev - er come.
 O house of Aa - ron, put in God your trust;

Gm C7 F C G7 C

Why should the na - tions ask, "Where is their God?"
 are mere - ly things that hands of men did mould their nos - trils can - not smell though men draw near Their mak - ers will, like them, though grow deaf and dumb,
 all you who fear him, in the Lord find rest

6. The LORD will not forget us but will bless all who in him alone their faith confess with thanks for all he gave them.
 On Aaron's house and on his Israel,
 on all who fear him will his blessings dwell;
 both small and great, he saves them.

7. May he, the LORD, give you a rich increase,
 you and your children with his bounties please.
 May God bless you from heaven;
 he shaped creation as he brought it forth.
 To him belong the heavens, but the earth
 the LORD to man has given.

8. The dead cannot in God the LORD rejoice;
 those who go down to silence cannot voice
 a new song to revere him.
 But we will bless the LORD for evermore,
 from this time forth and always him adore.
 Praise then the LORD and fear him.
